The House of Detention

about the house of detention infamous, potently atmospheric and cavernous, there has been a prison on the site of the clerkenwell house of detention since 1617. the current vaults date from the victorian prison of 1845. this extraordinary period location and rare victorian original is ideal for filming and music videos, stills, events, shows and exhibitions, advertising and commercial shoots and private parties. the venue has previously staged site-specific theatre and arts events, and was formerly open to the public as a london tourist attraction.

now available as an event venue your guests are unlikely to forget, with its rare period architecture, eerie victorian atmosphere and dark history.

film/tv: guy ritchie's sherlock holmes, oliver twist, most haunted, spooks, secret diary of a call girl, st trinian's 2
